COMBLES' DEFENSES PENETRATED BY FRENCH, WHO OCCUPY ROADS

Venizelos Government at Crete Formally Recognized by Allies—Scene of Greatest Fighting in War at Present Time Is Laid in Rumanian Territory

[By United Press]
PARIS, Oct. 16.—The French have penetrated the defense northeast of Combles and are now occupying houses at Bipaume on the Peronne road. The German counters are still raging.

Fighting Raging
[By United Press]
LONDON, Oct. 16.—It is learned the French consul at Crete has recognized and formally called on the Venizelos nationalist government there. The Germans, using liquid fire and artillery, unsuccessfully attacked the Schwaben redoubt, north of Thiepval. The British patrol has penetrated Bursuk, Macedonia, and British aviators are bombarding Buk bridge. Severe fighting is raging at Palanka. Rumania, the Teutons attempting to advance to the south and seize the Tergo-Oena railway, which supplies the northern Rumanian armies. In the extreme north the Rumanians are retreating to their own frontier, while in Southern Transylvania the Rumanians are countering. Southeast of Kronstadt the Rumanians halted the Teuton advance and began an offensive. The heaviest fighting is in the Vulkan pass, where the Austrians were forced to yield ground. The Bulgarian-Serbian battle on the Czerna river is still unsettled. Berlin claims the Teutons penetrated Gympes pass and invaded Northwestern Rumania.

INSURANCE RATES TO EUROPE NOW REDUCED

Believed "Inside Information" Has Been Secured Indicating That U-53 Has Been Captured or Returned to Germany

[By United Press]
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Shippers say that munitions shipments will be continued to Europe unless there is worse submarine activity off the Atlantic coast than that already accomplished. This is largely due to the safe arrival of vessels from Europe.

Insurance Rates Reduced
[By United Press]
LONDON, Oct. 16.—Shippers here believe that Lloyds' reduction in transatlantic insurance rates is due to "inside information" that the U-53 has been sunk, captured or returned to Germany.

TEUTONS IN SEPTEMBER CAPTURE 74 OF THE ALLIES' AEROPLANES

Berlin Claims Only Pitiful Fragments of the Rumanians Escaped to Mountains—First Army Practically Annihilated and Second Nearly Destroyed

[By United Press]
BERLIN, Oct. 16.—The British who penetrated the first trenches northeast of Guebecourt have been repulsed. The French attack at Sully was also repulsed. The Germans downed and captured seventy-four of the Allies' aeroplanes in September.

the Rumanian frontier.
Rumans in New Offensive
[By United Press]
BUCHAREST, Oct. 16.—It is announced the Rumanians in a new offensive occupy Stansligeman and two other villages in Alt valley.

Teutons Repulsed
[By United Press]
PETROGRAD, Oct. 16.—The Teuton counters in the great battle north of Keryntion were heavily repulsed. There is heavy fighting on wide fronts at Volhybia and Galicia, north of Stanislaw, and the Teuton efforts to advance were repulsed. The Teuton attacks in the Carpathians have also failed of success. The Teutons have launched a big offensive near

Only Fragments Left
[By United Press]
BERLIN, Oct. 16.—It is semi-officially stated that only "pitiful fragments" of the Rumanians invading southeastern Transylvania escaped to the mountains. The first and a big part of the second army were practically annihilated around Hermanstadt. The second, lost heavily in their retreat from an enveloping movement.

Republican Speakers Fail to Make Much Impression on Carsonites

A full house greeted the two Republican speakers at the C. and C. theater Saturday night, but it is safe to say that considerably more than half of the audience was Democratic and came with the distinct purpose of learning what arguments the speakers would put up in answer to the achievements of the Wilson administration and what could be expected in the way of "reforms" if Hughes were elected. The Republicans who were there were enthusiastically inclined and punctuated the speakers' partisan "hits" with liberal applause.

There was some disappointment because Mrs. Frank Bliss was unable to appear, but her sudden illness during the afternoon precluded any possibility of her presenting herself, so a hurry-up call was sent out and Miss Bernice Marshall of Chicago, who had been accompanying former Senator Theodore E. Burton, took her place, and if the reports sent out by the press regarding Mrs. Bliss' ability as a speaker are a criterion it cannot be said that the audience profited by the substitution of Miss Marshall; rather, there was a disappointment, for the lady failed to "make good."

Miss Marshall talked, or rather rambled, for an hour, and made statements that were impossible of verification. She attacked the labor legislation of the Wilson administration and declared it was "all ineffective," stating that the child-labor law, in which she said she was vitally interested and it was the subject nearest her heart, was practically nil. Evidently she had not learned that Senator Cummins of Iowa, who is regarded as one of the few big men of the Republican party, stated less than three weeks ago, and the statement appeared in the Appeal at the time, that the law recently passed by congress practically abolished the employment of child labor and it was so constructed as to resist assault. Miss Marshall also assumed that the Mexican trouble was of recent occurrence and began with the Wilson administration, not admitting for a moment that it was a hold-over from the Taft regime and that it had disturbed the slumbers of the Republicans for many years before it was bequeathed to the Democrats. She inferentially and adroitly advocated intervention and conquest of Mexico, but kind of stopped when she got the troops down to the border, where they could protect the families that might be sent down there, and located from Illinois, her home state.

The real intervention and taking over of Mexico, however, she left to "White Horse" Harry Morehouse, who followed her in his address. He talked conquest without any mixing of words and said that was what the Republicans would do in the event of Hughes' election. The "army" would simply go down and take the twenty-seven states and territories:

Miller Comments on Sam Platt's 11th-Hour Conversion to Suffrage

[Special to Appeal]
LOVELOCK, Oct. 15.—After a strenuous day, in which 135 miles were covered, Grant Miller reached Lovelock late in the evening. He left Reno early in the morning on the last lap of the statewide campaign which he is making for the office of United States senator. Fernley was the first place where a stop was made. The farmers are putting up a third crop of hay but nearly all were in to hear the speaking. Miller's ridicule of Platt's appeal for the woman's vote was received with much laughter.

"He never said a word for equal suffrage when it would have done any good," said Miller, "but now he wants a front seat on the bandwagon."

It was 9:30 in the evening when Miller faced a well-filled house in the Orpheum theater, Lovelock. In spite of the late hour he held the attention of his audience until the close of his address.
Evidently Grant Miller doesn't appreciate Sam Platt's aid in condemning the Pittman land bill. The speaker asked: "If Platt is sincere in his opposition, why didn't he come out when the bill was first introduced, or at any time since, until he believed it would help his candidacy? I have fought it from the very start and didn't wait until I thought such a move was good politics."

WILL SHOW HOT HOUSE PLANTS SAN FRANCISCO IS FOR WILSON

[By United Press]
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Members of the Wilson League here have announced that many women will assemble at the ferry tomorrow to show the Hughes' special party that San Francisco is for Wilson. Wilson banners are now being prepared. Republican women do not anticipate a repetition of the Portland trouble and are certain the visitors will receive courteous treatment. Democrats do not say that the Portland methods are contemplated.

To Make 22 Speeches
[By United Press]
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Wilson has decided to make twenty-two platform speeches on his way to and from Chicago, where he will speak on Thursday.

Hughes In Nebraska
HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 16.—In his speech here Hughes alleged the Democrats failed to consider pleasing the farmers prior to the enactment of the Adamson bill. He answered Wilson's remarks about "invisible government" by saying there was no invisible government in New York when he was governor.

Anne Talked to Forty
Miss Anne Martin talked last night at the Gaiety theater to about forty persons, but she didn't deny that she is hired to work against President Wilson and the Democrats by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, mother of "Yeller Bill," who has enormous estates, recently confiscated by Carranza, in old Mexico. Miss Martin contradicted herself a score or more of times in her tirade against Wilson, Pittman and Caine, but through courtesy was allowed to finish without serious interruption.—Elko Independent.
